A NEW PEACE OF WESTPHALIA OR WORLD WAR III

by Pierre Beaudry, 10/21/16

FOREWORD

This report will deal with essentially two questions. First, how can you tell when you are being manipulated by a satanic operation? Secondly, how do you establish a lasting Peace of Westphalia? Let's start with the more difficult question first: How can you tell that this poster is a SATANIC OPERATION? (Figure 1)

Figure 1 The two faces of madness in the current American Presidential Election. Disinformation from: <http://www.whatdoesitmean.com/index2134.htm>

INTRODUCTION

Some people would have you believe that the choice the citizens have in the current 2016-US Presidential Election is the choice between war and peace under the guise of two presidential candidates, Hillary Clinton (candidate for war) and Donald Trump (candidate for peace). That's a lie and a complete fallacy of composition concocted by the Satanist Networks of a British Intelligence operation located in the Rivermont Avenue Baptist Church, Lynchburg, Virginia, USA and at the Celtic Christian: Seven Distinctives of the prayer foundation in Dublin, Ireland. How do I know this is Satanism? I know this from the vantage point of two historical and epistemological reasons which transpire from their doctrine. (See the short APPENDIX at the end of this report.)

First of all, the name "Celtic Christianity" is actually an anomaly, a contradiction in terms. Celtic belief is primarily a form of the Gaia pagan Cult that was partly defeated in Europe under the leadership of Charlemagne and Alcuin, near the end of the 9th Century AD. However, what the term Celtic really means is Pagan. Therefore, it would have been better to call this "cult:" Pagan Christianity. But the contradiction would have been a little too obvious.

Secondly, the mystical beliefs of this so-called "Celtic Christianity" reflect a form of freemasonic mysticism, historically known as Martinism, which later became the British-run secret society used to launch and control the French Revolution under the Synarchist leadership of Joseph De Maistre in 1789. See my report: <http://www.amatterofmind.us/synarchy/synarchy-i-ii/>

This report will show you how to identify such intelligence operations and how to shed the light of day on their lies and fallacies of composition from the standpoint of epistemology as opposed to "religious belief."

SORCHA FAAL is an intelligence outfit of the "Martinist-de-Maistres" category, based in Lynchburg Virginia, which caters especially to the "conspiracy theory" oriented crowd of old believers in the Orthodox Church of Russia and to the fundamentalists in the Southern Baptist category in the United States. They are pushing for the election of Trump, because they see a soupçon of truth in the way he talks.

1. HOW TO RECOGNIZE A DISINFORMATION REPORT

How do you recognize the fallacy of a disinformation intelligence report? For instance, how can you immediately uncover the satanic nature of the intelligence report put out by Sister Maria Theresa “SORCHA FAAL” via www.whatdoesitmean.com? You need to do two things.

First of all, do not consider the meaning of what that intelligence report says; do not consider the content of the words, as such. Look, instead, for the level of knowledge by means of which the message is transmitted to a “conspiracy” oriented individual. Is the content of a high or low level of intelligence? In other words, don’t look at what the words say; look, instead, for the intention behind the words. Then, ask yourself: “Is the intention addressing my belief and my sense perception, or is it addressing the cognitive powers of my mind?” Is it talking to what I am willing to believe, or is it addressing something a little more difficult to grasp and that I need to know? That’s the first and most important difference to sort out. Unless you do that, you won’t be able to figure out the truth of anything. It’s one thing to tell you you’re in trouble; it is another to help you get out of it.

Secondly, you have to be able to make the difference between a lie and disinformation. Your own natural mental powers should allow you to distinguish between a lie, which is a direct untruth; and disinformation, which is a lie that has all of the appearance of being truthful. Take the case of Figure 1. The poster does not simply lie; it tells you something that appears to be credible. The apparent truth which is hidden behind this so-called “Russian” publicity poster is that a Trump Presidency will lead to peace and a Clinton Presidency will lead to war. This “appears” to be true only because it appears to be a likely truth; but it is pure disinformation. How can you tell the difference? You can only do it from a higher standpoint

The truth is that Trump and Clinton can both lead to nuclear war because both are controlled by financial forces that represent pure evil which are in control of both of them. So, let's look at the scenario which has concocted a fake "Red October" surprise from that higher standpoint.

2. THE FAKE "RED OCTOBER" THREAT

"Truth can never be based on what appears to be credible."

Dehors Debonneheure

There have been several disinformation campaigns about American policy making put out by an apparent "Russian" intelligence outfit called "THE SISTERS OF SORCHA FAAL," which are meant to induce fear and confusion in the minds of the American population by making them believe that war is inevitable and that, from the standpoint of Russia, World War III has already begun. In other words, the fallacy is that unless the American population votes overwhelmingly in favor of Trump, Russia and America are going to be at war.

The implied underlying assumption of this so-called "Russian disinformation" is that this American Presidential election must lead to war or self-destruct the United States. These are lies peddled in the English language by the online blog called: www.whatdoesitmean.com. Let's have a close look at their modus operandi. One of the members of their congregation, Sister Ciara reported the following:

"As you read these words that World War III has begun, and whose first major battlefield is in Syria, the main belligerent in this conflict, the United States, is furiously trying to cover-up its unprovoked attack upon an aid convoy—and whose military leaders are in open rebellion against President Obama's authority when they said this week that that they may or may not comply with the ceasefire agreed to between the Russians and Americans.

“From the many messages from our sources we’ve been able read about this war, as well as a growing number of press reports, we’re not able to tell you who’s in charge of America anymore—as the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Dunford, said this week that ‘for us to control all of the airspace in Syria would require us to go to war against Syria and Russia’, but was immediately countered by US Secretary of State John Kerry who demanded that Russian planes stop flying in Syria right now.

“As Russia has no intention of abiding by any American ultimatum, ‘someone’ in the United States ordered their missile shield activated against Russia—and that Russia had previously warned if that happened would lead to nuclear war.

“Immediately after the United States activated their missile shield though, President Obama fired two of his top generals--Major General Wayne Grigsby and Joint Chiefs of Staff Brigadier General Michael Bobeck—while at the same time “someone” ordered an entire battalion of US Marine infantry troops back to base in North Carolina and placed them on ‘Alert Status’.

“At the same time this turmoil is shaking the power corridors of America, Russian intelligence reports are warning of an expected “Red October” event to occur soon that will plunge Russia into direct and open warfare with the United States—and that my other Sisters will (hopefully) inform you more about this coming week.

“But my greatest concern right now is YOU—because you’ve not only been left in the dark about what’s happening, you’ve also been “conditioned” to ignore any warning being given to you about what’s happening, and without your knowing the truth that will leave you defenseless.

“Now I’m going to do my best to not be over technical with you, but before I continue, watch this video to see EXACTLY what is being done to control you:” (*World War III Has Begun As “Red October” Event Nears.*)

This is a typical format of their disinformation. And then, as if you were watching some TV show of "Believe it or not," Ciara introduces the video of a social experiment demonstrating how most people are turned into sheep. The fallacy of composition is that the video is true to form, but asserting that Russia is preparing a "Red October" operation is where the deception is being insinuated.

This is a method of manipulating information for the purpose of mind control because Christians do not advocate war; they advocate peace. Christians don't torture people by scaring them, they try to save them. The view that a new "Red October" is being set up in Russia, and is putting Russia in direct and open warfare with the United States, is a British-run satanic scenario known in the intelligence community as "gas-lighting." The SORCHA FAAL group even uses the example of this method of gas-lighting to accuse their enemy, the US Government.

The 1944 film Gaslight, starring Ingrid Bergman and Charles Boyer, is the clinical example of such a manipulation where a wife is being convinced by her husband that she is going insane. Sociopaths and narcissistic personalities often make use of such forms of manipulations by abusing entire populations with charm and rhetoric. This has been the case in the United States for the last 20 years or so, with the victimization of the American population by their Presidents and Congress. People were made to believe they were getting richer, while they were actually getting poorer and poorer. The most susceptible victims to this sort of abuse are people whose identity is entirely dependent on perception of public opinion; that is, the majority of the American people.

The point to understand is that in the "Red October" scenario, sister Ciara's report is made to lower your powers of intelligence and increase your tendency to be suspicious and fearful. Similarly, in the 1944 film Gaslight, the lights were really dimming in the house because the husband was using the energy in the attic; but, this was done to make the wife believe it was not happening in reality, but only in her mind. That is the satanic nature of the psychological method of manipulation that SORCHA FAAL uses in all of her reports. Ciara's report in fact is hiding behind the paradox whereby the sane people appear to be crazy, and the crazy appear to be sane. That is explicitly the Bertrand Russell method.

That modern type of British Intelligence method of population control goes back to Bertrand Russell's method of convincing people that "snow is black." This is a form of brainwashing in which a victim is manipulated into doubting his own mind, and even his own sanity, and is ultimately made to believe the opposite of what reality is by distorting his perception of reality. The purpose of gas-lighting is to destroy someone's "perception of reality." In other words, it is a social conditioning trick which is dominated by the changing perception of public opinion. A current example of this, on a worldwide scale today, is Pokémon-go.

The immediate give away of such a manipulation scheme is when the manipulator of the victim announces that he is the only person they can trust. That is precisely what Sister Ciara does in her article. Immediately after establishing the so-called "facts" quoted above, she turns to the American readers and explains why she is very concerned about their mental state, because, as she says, "you've been 'conditioned' to ignore any warning being given to you about what's happening, and without your knowing the truth that will leave you defenseless."

The point to be emphasized is that it is not enough to tell people they are being manipulated; you must show them the way out and give them a solution to the problem. If you don't do that, you are also manipulating them. People have to grow up and take the responsibility for changing the world. And the way to do that is to shift their attention away from the clown show they are being served with this presidential election and mobilize them to get Congress back to Washington DC in order to adopt the LaRouche's Four New Laws program and prevent the United States from going bankrupt. (See: Lyndon LaRouche, **THE FOUR NEW LAWS TO SAVE THE USA NOW! NOT AN OPTION: AN IMMEDIATE NECESSITY**, June 8, 2014.)

3. RABELAIS AND FRANÇOIS I ON THE GARGANTUA PEACE OF PICROCHOLE

At a deeper level, the population must be made aware that the crisis of civilization that we are in is not just a difficult moment in history; it is a moment of axiomatic change for the whole of mankind. And this is not a threat, this is reality. This is the reason why we must go back in history in order to rediscover how this problem posed by the current American Presidential Election can be solved.

We must first go to the period of the Thirty Years War and to the Peace of Westphalia which had resolved the principal European conflict of war, but which was subverted by the European imperial doctrine that the French and American revolutions were not able to resolve.

The task at hand is big and outrageous, historically speaking, because its purpose is to put an end to war itself; that is to say, eliminate the source of what has been plaguing mankind for millennia. What has to be eradicated is the politics of suspicion. As long as you maintain suspicion in your relationship to others, and as long as governments maintain a status quo on this form of evil conduct, the world will fail to solve the war problem. This is where the Westphalian principle of the benefit of the other has to be understood properly by all governing bodies of the world today, because it is the only principle in history which can secure peace for mankind as a whole. Therefore, the principle of taking advantage of the other has to be eradicated altogether. It is as simple as that.

Officially, the principle of suspicion was established as governing principle for Europe ever since The Oath of Strasbourg of 842, when the two grandsons of Charlemagne, Charles the Bald and Louis the German were sworn to a mutual allegiance that was intended to destroy a third brother, Lothar. See my report: **LOTHARINGIA: THE HISTORICAL TROJAN HORSE INSIDE OF EUROPE.**

The Oath of Strasbourg of 842 has been the source of all of the wars in Europe since that time. All of the attempts to unify France under an agapic principle of peace that were attempted by Jeanne d'Arc and followed by Louis XI failed because they were constantly undermined by imperialist designs centered in Venice, primarily, and were aimed at controlling the old Lotharingia region of Europe, that is, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxemburg, Alsace Lorraine, and the Duchy of Burgundy, as a North-South borderland of warfare that split Europe in half for the purpose of population control by warfare.

François Rabelais devoted a significant part of his First Book on the adventures of Gargantua to celebrate the principle of the Peace of Picrochole which was the principle that he advocated for a peace arrangement between François I and Charles V. The principle of the Peace of Picrochole can be found in Chapter 50 of Book One. In Gargantua's Address to the Vanquished, Rabelais wrote:

“Our fathers, grandfathers, and ancestors from time immemorial have been of such a nature and disposition that as a memorial to the victories and triumphs they have won in the battles they have fought, they have preferred to erect monuments in the hearts of the vanquished by a display of clemency, than to raise trophies in the form of architecture in the lands they have conquered. For they have valued the lively gratitude of men, won by their liberality, more highly than mute inscriptions on arches, columns, and pyramids, which are subject to the injuries of climate and all men's spite. [...]

“But what did we see? Whereas other kings and emperors, even such as call themselves Catholic [That is, François I], would have miserably ill-treated him, harshly imprisoned him, and asked a prohibitive ransom for him, my father treated him cautiously and kindly, lodged him near himself, in his own palace, and with incredible generosity, sent him back under safe conduct, loaded with gifts, loaded with favors, loaded with every evidence of friendship. And what was the result? When he got back to his country, he summoned all of the princes and estates of his kingdom, explained to them the humanity he had met with us, desiring them to deliberate on this, and consider how to show the world an example of gracious honor to match the example we had shown of honorable graciousness. [...]

“Such is the nature of gratuitousness (sic): Time, which gnaws and fritters all things away, only augments and increases the value of benefits; for one good turn freely done to an intelligent man grows continuously by his generous thoughts and remembrances.” (François Rabelais, Gargantua and Pantagruel, Penguin Books, London, 1955, pp. 145-47.)

This report of Gargantua's Address to the Vanquish, entirely written tongue in cheek, could have served as an actual plan for the Peace of Westphalia, 126 years later. It may have been used by Mazarin as a Gargantuan Plan to put an end to all imperial designs over Europe.

Unfortunately, the translator, J. M. Cohen, mistakenly took the French word “gratuité” for “gratitude.” The term should have been “gratuitousness,” which is the key idea that Rabelais introduced as the solution to the war-thorn Europe. The idea is to be found in Chapter 50 of Book One of Rabelais' writings which is in direct reference to François I (1494-1547) and to Charles V (1500-1558).

When German Emperor, Maximilian died, in 1519, his grandson, Charles V of Spain became emperor and also the deadly rival of François I of France. At the age of 19, Charles had the firm intention of instituting a universal monarchy by restoring the Lotharingie as part of Germany and by making France a satrapy of his imperial domain. That did not bode well with the young King of France, who was then 21 years of age. So, both impetuous youths led Europe into 27 years of destructive wars.

Rabelais's story, published in 1532, points primarily to the outcome of the imprisonment of François after he had lost the battle of Pavia in 1525. As the 1526 letter of François I to Charles V excerpted below shows, the gratuitous nature of the gift of the King's person was a direct reflection of the spirit of the Gargantua letter, except that François' intention was rather an expression of “honest pity” in his favor. François I wrote:

« Please have this honorable compassion of estimating the value of liberating a King of France that you wish to turn into a friend instead of a desperate person, and you will then become assured of making an asset of him instead of a useless prisoner, and will have turned a King into your slave for always.” (Henri Lemonnier, *La France sous Henri II : la lutte contre la Maison d’Autriche \(1519-1559\)*, Éditions Tallandier, Paris 1983, p. 48.)

As a result of his victory, Charles V of Spain gained complete control over ancient Lotharingia, including a succession to the Burgundian Netherlands. That strategic control later established the circumstance for the Eighty Years’ War between Habsburg Spain and the Netherlands. History must not forget that the Italian wars were also the product of the incessant wars of François I’s predecessors, which all go back to the axiomatic turn of The Oath of Strasbourg of 842. Similarly, every French King and President, since François I, followed religiously the same policy of warfare over the divisive domains of the Lotharingia up until the Nazi invasion of France in 1939. This is not the result of an accident of history; this is the result of a willful axiomatic intention of policy, which is satanic in character.

In 1525, at the Battle of Pavia, in 1525, François I was wounded and taken prisoner by Charles V, who locked him up in a tower-cell in Madrid. As the price to pay for his freedom, Charles demanded of François that he cede to him a third of the territory of France, surrender Burgundy to Spain, renounce France’s claims over any Italian territory, and abandon all claims over Flanders and Artois. In the Treaty of Madrid of 1526, that he signed and then reneged on, François I declared that he refused to dismember his kingdom, and that he could not accept to marry, by proxy, the widow of the King of Portugal, sister of his jailer. The most outrageous humiliating condition was that he had to deliver his two eldest sons as hostages to guarantee his good faith.

Figure 2 Western Europe after Charles V won the Battle of Pavia in 1525. The entirety of the Lotharingia region had been recaptured by Charles V at the exception of Savoy.

The point to be made, here, is not to say that Charles V was the bad guy and François I was the good guy. Both of them were pretty stupid, because their folie des grandeurs led them to wage war on each other, during more than a quarter of a century, thus, destroying a great part of the European population just to satisfy their greed and glory. The point is that both monarchs were pursuing a policy of population reduction where the whole of Europe would continuously self-destruct under the perpetual “suspicion” spirit of The Oath of Strasbourg.

4. CARDINAL GUIDO BENTIVOGLIO: CREATOR OF THE POLITICAL PRINCIPLE OF THE BENEFIT OF THE OTHER

Cardinal Guido Bentivoglio (1579-1644) was involved very early on in negotiations that would end to the Eighty Years' War (1568-1648) between the Netherlands and the Spanish Habsburg. Pope Paul V (1605-1621) appointed him Papal Nuncio successively to Brussels and Paris for the purpose of countering the dominating influence of the Jesuits over European Courts, and to establish the principle of agape as the basis of a peace that would put an end to all wars. Pope Paul V was the sworn enemy of the Venetian monk, Paolo Sarpi, whom he had excommunicated along with the Doge, the Senate, and the entire city of Venice in 1606. From 1616 to 1621, Bentivoglio became Papal Nuncio to Louis XIII of France under the authority of Pope Paul V.

His original deployment was to the Netherlands, where he became responsible for organizing a peace process between the republicans of Netherlands and the oligarchs of Spain. Similarly, the Vatican had sent him to prevent the eruption of the Thirty Years' War, by attempting to solve the conflict of the inheritance of the two eldest sisters of Julich-Cleves after his death, but he was not successful. Anna of Prussia was a Protestant and Anna of Cleves was a Catholic. Both were manipulated into going to war.

His most valuable contribution to peace was his mission to the court of France from 1616 until 1621. His mission was to expel the Jesuits from the court of Louis XIII, as Paul V had already done in Venice at the time he excommunicated the entire city. By 1621, Bentivoglio had accomplished his mission successfully with the introduction of the principle of the “Benefit of the other” as the fundamental principle to prevent and stop all wars. King Louis XIII gave him the post of Cardinal Protector of France and rewarded him for his services by appointing him to the Bishopric of Riez. It was Cardinal Bentivoglio, personally, who trained Jules Mazarin and who deployed him to Paris, in 1639, in order to help the Queen Regency develop a strategy for the peace for Europe as a whole.

Bentivoglio was renowned for his sophisticated diplomacy and for his refusal to respond to force by force. His discrete and undisclosed purpose in France was to neutralize the influence of the Venetians and the Jesuits who were manipulating the so-called « religious wars. » Bentivoglio’s brand of diplomacy was patience, tolerance, and giving your adversary the opportunity to gain in the exchange. He was calm and attentive to every intention behind people's words and attenuated everything that was offensive. In every conflicting situation, he looked for peaceful reconciliation and was even willing to accept defeat if that was to bring about a peaceful resolution. As he wrote in his memoirs: "My services are the more successful when they are least suspected." See Bentivoglio's [*Lettres diplomatiques* and Memoires.]

In 1634, Bentivoglio was nominated vice-legate to Avignon, and was already considered a candidate to become the next Pope. When Pope Urban VIII died, on July 29, 1644, it was expected that Bentivoglio would succeed him. The French court of Louis XIII supported Bentivoglio's candidacy for the pontificate, but that was not meant to be. He was reportedly taken over by a fever during the eleven-day conclave, and he died on September 7, 1644. Bentivoglio had been the unacknowledged champion behind Jules Mazarin, who said of him that he had "angelic morals, a sweet nature, noble thoughts, prudent, wise, experienced, witty, ingenious . . ." (*Van Dyck's Portrait of Cardinal Bentivoglio*)

A week after Bentivoglio's death, on September 15, 1644, it was the Spanish Nuncio, Cardinal Giovanni Pamphili, an Anti-Peace of Westphalia Ultramontane Integrist, who became Pope Innocent X (1644-1655). A few months later, there was so much hatred and fear of the Peace of Westphalia from the Aristotelian faction of the Vatican and against Bentivoglio's principle of the "Benefit of the other," that Innocent X wrote an encyclical called, Zelo Domus Dei, in which he called the Peace of Westphalia: "Null, void, invalid, iniquitous, unjust, damnable, inane, empty of meaning and effect for all time." Why was there so much hatred and venom against the Peace of Westphalia? Because the new peace had established the political conditions for the eradication of oligarchism and the emergence of true republican sovereign nation-states all over Europe.

Three hundred and sixty years later, British Prime Minister, Tony Blair, denounced the Peace of Westphalia with almost as much venom as had Pope Innocent X, and for the same reasons. He abandoned the Peace of Westphalia to adopt, instead, the policy of Regime Change. Just to give you a sample of his mild-mannered hypocrisy, this is what Blair said during his Chicago speech of March 5, 2004, in order to justify the beginnings of a new Thirty Years' War in Iraq:

“So, for me, before September 11th, I was already reaching for a different philosophy in international relations from a traditional one that has held sway since the treaty of Westphalia in 1648; namely that a country's internal affairs are for it and you don't interfere unless it threatens you, or breaches a treaty, or triggers an obligation of alliance. I did not consider Iraq fitted into this philosophy, though I could see the horrible injustice done to its people by Saddam.” (Full text: Tony Blair's speech.)

This is how the new satanic British policy of regime change was introduced officially as a Trojan Horse inside of the United States, in 2004, by British Prime Minister Tony Blair, himself; and our nation has been under this pre-1648 imperial doctrine of regime change ever since. British Intelligence understood the real significance of the Peace of Westphalia and that is why Prime Minister Tony Blair attacked its principle by name when the Anglo-Americans went to war against Iraq.

Thus, the time has come to settle this account, once and for all, and finally solve this problem of war by understanding the true paradoxical nature of the Peace of Westphalia. This, however, calls for a special disposition of mind, a disposition which I would call: “Having a Rabelaisian moment.”

5. WHAT IT MEANS TO 'HAVE A RABELAISIAN MOMENT'

The best way to prevent yourself from falling into the traps of disinformation and make sure your mission for the benefit of mankind gets accomplished is to follow the example of François Rabelais and to adopt his paradoxical method of solving problems. The story I am about to tell you is a true story, and that is why the names of the persons involved have not been changed for reasons that will become obvious after you have read it:

One day, at the conclusion of one of his many trips to Rome, in the capacity of assistant to the Ambassador of the King of France, Cardinal Jean du Bellay, Rabelais was returning to Paris with secret documents that were meant for François I's eyes only. As he got to Lyons, he found himself short of money and was embarrassed about how he was going to pay for the rest of his voyage.

After a short period of reflection, he came up with a stratagem that would get him to Paris without any money; that is to say, with gratuitousness. That stratagem became known in French as having “un quart d’heure de Rabelais” or “having a Rabelaisian moment.”

According to his biographer, Rabelais asked a young man to write a couple of notes, one of which said on it: "Poison for killing the King." The second note said: "Poison to kill the Queen." Then, Rabelais attached the two notes on two separate little bags filled with some inoffensive powder and told the young man to warn the police just before leaving his Hotel the next morning about what he saw sitting on a table in the room of that dangerous individual.

The next morning, the police came to Rabelais' room and arrested him for the crime he was about to commit. Rabelais was then put into a police wagon and brought to Paris to be interrogated by a magistrate. However, once he got to Paris, Rabelais showed his identification papers to the Paris police, proving that he was an Ambassador to the King. He was immediately released and brought before the King, who confirmed his identity and is said to have had the greatest laugh of his life.

IN CONCLUSION: WHY LAROCHE'S SOLARIAN FORECAST IS THE ONLY SOLUTION

It was the forceful implementation of the advantage of the other's faith which caused the breakthrough in the negotiations of the Peace of Westphalia. It is only the political respect for the dignity of other religions which can bring lasting peace on Earth, and nothing else.

The forceful application of such a political decision is comparable to a shock front, which can be illustrated by the Kepler-Gauss-Riemann representation of the wave shock front of an elliptical function of the golden section generated in the complex domain of economics. See my report: THE ACROPOLIS OF ATHENS: THE CLASSICAL IDEA OF BEAUTY.

Imagine the formation of a wave shock-front generated from the galactic motion of the Sun, that is, a self-similar conical-spiral function creating the physical formation of our planetary system, in accordance with Kepler's Three Laws and following Riemann's unique experiment of the shock wave.

If you do this properly, you will see emerging, within the harmonic ordering of a self-similar conical-spiral least-action as a whole, an axiomatic singularity such as an arithmetic-geometric discontinuity located in the region of the asteroid belt, between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter: that is, an axiomatic change of register between F# and G of the Well-Tempered musical system. This is the axiomatic change located at register shift change of our solar system.

However, such a discovery in the Galactic Solar System can only be made through the actual performative function of generating a similar axiomatic change in the mind of someone else, by generating a constructive-geometrical-projection similar to the one that Kepler had created in order to solve the mystery of the change that takes place between the living processes of constructing a honey comb and the flat hexagonal dimensionality of snowflakes.

Look at the axiomatic change of a New Peace of Westphalia in the same way; that is, as the coming together of a paradigm shift bringing together the LaRouche method of increasing energy-flux-density of humanity with the epistemologically required condition of the win-win outlook of Xi Jinping, and applying it to the planet as a whole.

Look also at the asteroid belt as the result of a « shattered planet » that could not come into existence under the higher geometry created by the Sun at that point. This is very similar to the natural destruction of the looting Imperialist systems of the Venetian-run Habsburg and British Empires, which are all self-destroying, today, under the emerging new paradigm shift for world peace.

This Peace of Westphalia register shift, or the asteroid belt, such as Kepler first approximated it, as in the position of an « exploded planet », which Gauss later confirmed with his discovery of the asteroid Ceres, reflects the area of axiomatic change in the physical geometry of our planetary system, which occurred, naturally, when our solar system transformed itself, during its original formation, billions of years ago. This defines the forecastable quality of long-term economic cycles as Lyndon LaRouche has been developing for the last 40 years or so. And this is why it is essential that such an astrophysical singularity be reflected back to all of the minds of mankind at this strategic moment, as if from the dimly lit wall of Plato's Cave. (Figure 6)

As I have written the same as here in other places, this axiomatic change of our Solar System is represented by the successful passing from the lower geometry of the smaller « hard surface » planets into the higher geometry of the « gas giants ». It was in a similar historical condition that the geometry of the Peace of Westphalia changed Europe as a whole, by passing from the geometry of a few immature nation-states such as France under Louis XI, and England under Henry VII, to the geometry of a community of principle between sovereign nation-states where new conditions for economic growth in Europe as a whole, had been destroyed before October 24, 1648.

LaRouche is absolutely right. We have come to a time where we are no longer mere Earthlings. We must now all collaborate in becoming Solarians; that is, a species of the Solar System. The current financial crisis that is about to erupt visibly, worldwide, is very similar to that of the « exploded planet » which generated the asteroid belt of our Solar System. A similar eruption is about to take place within the current hedge fund speculation-driven shock front of the financial Synarchy International.

As LaRouche showed, there is a solution to this crisis. If the Sun's growing power for the common good had not been able to change its « geometrical intention » lawfully beyond the crisis point of the Asteroid Belt, the solar system as a whole would have collapsed on itself a long time ago; and its economic production and distribution of isotope-rich resources would not have been available for mankind to exploit as its solarian economic heritage. That is a gift from the Sun to the Earth. This is the gratuitousness of the benefit of the other in the Solar System.

This means that sovereign nation states, as we know them today, can no longer exist in the form that they have existed up until now. They must change, and they must change with the spirit of including within their own survival, the function of the benefit of other nation states in an all-inclusive world of developing nations.

Thus, as Lyndon LaRouche forecasted the event of such an axiomatic change at this strategic historical juncture of our global Solar economic system, it is required that the process of the current « exploding world monetary system » of the Synarchy International be completed upward in an orderly fashion and that the orbit of the nations of a new world be wrenched forward into new conditions of physical economic growth for the benefit of all of mankind.

This means that, by necessity, all of the nations of the world must now chose to accept the win-win policy of Xi Jinping based on the LaRouche method of axiomatic change as the best offer being put on the table of mankind. That is what the American Citizenry should vote for in this Presidential Election.

APPENDIX : THE SO-CALLED 'SEVEN DISTINCTIVES'. THIS IS NOT CHRISTIANITY, THIS IS PAGANISM!

“How Rivermont Avenue Baptist Church describes their Celtic Service:

“The Celtic Christian Service is a mystical, contemplative service rooted in the ancient 5th and 6th Century Celtic Christian tradition. This service features ancient poetry, intentional silence, and music in the styles of the British Isles.

“1. Simplicity - lacks the emphasis on complicated rationalistic doctrine found in most of Western Christianity.

“2. Holism - refuses to separate life into the spiritual and material, the heart and head, the sacred days and workdays, etc. Modern Christians tend to compartmentalize life.

“3. Mystery - speaks to the mystical unity that arises from understanding the limitations of human knowledge. Much of the Christian subculture in America is bureaucratic, programmatic, and political.

“4. Immanence - teaches that God is present with His creation.

“5. Environment - encourages earth-keeping as a way to honor God.

“6. Equality - regards all persons as equal and erases the separation between clergy and laity, men and women, etc.

“7. Hope - looks first for good rather than for evil in all things.”
